Hannah O'Reilly / Andy Valentine The Nouvelle-Écosse Tour 2011

Hannah O'Reilly

Hannah O'Reilly likes nothing more than to lull people into an aural state of rapture with her soulful and melodic voice... whilst singing about all the subjects that just shouldn't sound that pretty – she digs the juxtaposition. With her unique blend of acoustic rock and contemporary folk with jazz inflections, she has something for everyone.

Hannah has been amongst the sway and storm of song-writing for 12 years now, moving to Scotland from New Zealand in 2003 in a bid to take over the world. The rest of her family, unwilling to participate in the excessive tea-drinking in Britain, relocated to Canada instead. And so begins the basis for much of Hannah's writing - distance, disconnection, loss, love, and a healthy dose of black humour.

Hannah has 3 solo albums under her belt; and has gigs and festivals booked throughout Scotland and France in 2010. Her truly international past is reflected in both her songs and her desire to deliver them to a wide-ranging audience.

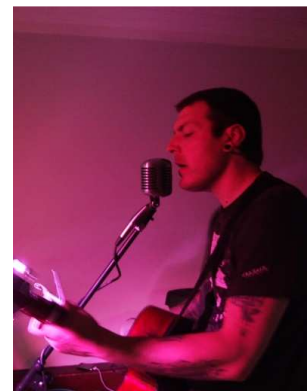

“What a stunning voice... really unique and hits you between the eyes” - Eddie Raynor (Split Enz),

“A perfect marriage of melody and lyrics....a true antidote to the utter mediocrity of Pop Idol et al” – Paul Tasker, Celtic Music Radio, 2010.

“Black-clad, wearing no shoes, and singing straight from the soul... Hannah O'Reilly, is a confident and charismatic performer... she is entrancing” – Barry Gordon, Evening News, 2005.

Joining Hannah for some of the tour is special guest - Andy Valentine

Andy Valentine effortlessly crosses the divide between pop-punk rocker and understated singer-songwriter. Combining the accessible qualities of pop, with candid and honest lyrical sensibilities. Andy enjoys nothing more than mixing up the genres and putting his distinctive slant on everything he sings – from rock, to pop, with a splash of emo, and the occasional punk groove, he has a song for every occasion.

Andy has been a stalwart of the Edinburgh music scene for many years, with both his band March Her To Norway, and at solo-acoustic nights. Concentrating on his beautiful blend of acoustic rock for this Canadian tour, Andy's musicality will blow you away.

'Valentine [has] razor-sharp guitar-work and vocals' – Edinburgh Spotlight, May 2010.
